

News Briefs

- The Associated Press' premier financial data product, Money & Markets, is now easier to use thanks to the redesigned AP Markets Web site. Money & Markets, highly customizable for both print and online use, provides insight each day into the financial markets with a broad mix of text, graphics and data modules.

"Users have told us the new site looks great, is easy to navigate, and provides increased functionality and better access to product information," said Josh Orenstein, AP global director of business and financial products. "The new features really highlight our Money & Markets product, and the site has been designed so that members can easily take action," Orenstein said.
